Precious Darling Wifie:-

Just received your darling Friday's letter and, honey love, I want to put you at ease as to my stomach. It's much better than it was and I believe its due to your directions that its so improving. Don't worry, love heart, I'll take good care of myself while you are away and feel that, please God, by the time you come, it will have passed.

Darling mine, I'll try ever so hard to send you newsy letters, big fat ones, but generally all that I know is from my cases and you know that, though I'm locked to secrecy, there are a few that I would tell you about, as I know it wouldn't go any further, but I couldn't possibly tell you via mail. Not much happens to me, anyway, for I'm not going out much now, for I'm waiting for my darling little wifie before I go out and enjoy myself. Tootsie, you might think, or rather you can feel sure that I love you, but, dearest, you will never know the depth of my love. This separation, God knows, is torture to me. Oh. Sundays especially so, for I see so many nice couples strolling around, and I must walk here and there all by myself, but, darling, please God, it won't be long before we, too, will be strolling together, eh, love? As for my coming up North next summer, I can't really give an answer now. In the first place, I dislike New York so much, that I actually hate it. Then again, the fare that I would have to pay for myself could be part of your spending money while there, see? Of course, honey love, we have to wait and see what Providence has in store for us before we can talk about it.

Yesterday, honey love, Uncle Morris and I went out for rooms, and right the corner from him they had 2 unfurnished rooms for rent. We went in, saw the place and practically took it but Uncle Morris told the woman we would be in this morning. When we got out, uncle Morris & I went over the matter fully and when he began showing me point I then realized how ignorant I am of housekeeping. We could have the use of the bath and reception room, but in the room where we would have the kitchen, there was no sink. To wash the dishes, you would have to get the water from the bath room, etc., so I began seeing that we could not afford 2 rooms, so I let it go. Uncle Morris told me to wait as something is bound to turn up soon. Then, too, Uncle Morris told me that as soon as I get a little cash saved up, he will give me part of his ground and I could have a 4 or 5 room house built and pay it off as with rent. Don't you think that's fine of him?

as soon as I get rooms, I'll have it all fixed up for you, my own precious darling. Uncle Morris also ~~through~~ in a hint that he is soon going to do something for Mondeau. As soon as I hear anything more, I'll let you know.

Here comes my client, love, so will have to close, but before I do, how are you feeling? Sure am glad "it" has left you. Take good care of yourself, love dear, and don't worry about me. I'll take good care of myself.

With all my love to you, darling mine, and with all my hugs and a whopper of a kiss.

Everlovingly

Joe.

You sure did fool me with that letter from the roofing. Will write about it tomorrow.
